To Whom it May Concern,

Mike Domitrz will give you and your audience a new way to look at dating, sensitivity in a relationship and respect for yourself and others! Mike teaches kids how to be sure they are reading their dating partner correctly and how to avoid unwanted touching and the legal allegations that can come with it. Students and their parents will be talking about Mike and the presentations that he made for some time to come.

A coalition of concerned citizens in the Sun Valley area brought Mike into the Wood River Valley to talk with students in the local schools and to the general public. The College of Southern Idaho and Department of Health and Welfare partnered with them to bring Mike to the Twin Falls area. He made two very successful presentations here.

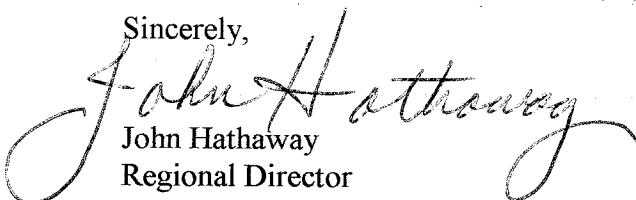

You will find Mike highly adaptable and engaging. He made presentations to kids in the 6th grade, all the way up to high school and then to parents and the public at large. In each situation he successfully engaged the audience at the appropriate level and not only held their attention, but garnered their whole hearted participation. This can be difficult to do especially with youth on this topic.

You will find that Mike first gains the trust and confidence of the audience and then with that trust and confidence approaches difficult issues and sets a new standard. His book "May I Kiss You?" should be made available in all public schools and should be required reading before kids date. Numerous parents in the audience purchased the book before they left the sessions.

After the training conference, both here and in Sun Valley, teachers who were in attendance met to figure out how we could get him back here to address larger audiences.

Without reservation, I highly recommend Mike Domitrz and his program. We plan to have him back as soon as time and resources will allow.

Sincerely,

John Hathaway
